

Protection Team News

VOLUME 6, ISSUE 12

DEAR FRIENDS,

It is official; we survived another hurricane season unscathed. This is great news for all of us, but especially for you, our clients. Since a big storm did not hit Florida this season, we are now seeing a number of insurance companies lower their premiums on renewal. Not only is your fuel bill shrinking, your insurance bill could also be shrinking in 2015! What a wonderful way to start the New Year.

However on the health insurance front, we have all been receiving notices that our premiums are going up in 2015. In the last two years, our office's premiums have gone up over 50%. In 2015, health insurance premiums will be our 2nd largest expense, right behind payroll. That's right; we will pay more for our team members' health insurance than we will for rent and utilities combined. So I totally understand your pain.

Speaking of pain, we all know this is the time of the year for all those holiday parties and New Year's celebrations. Please make the good decision before leaving and select one person who will be the designated driver. We do NOT want to see you or anyone else injured or killed by making one bad decision. It truly is not worth it in the long run. There are many programs out there that will make sure you and your vehicle will get home safe and sound if you do decide to drink. Just don't put the keys in the ignition.

Before I close the book on 2014, I would like to thank all of you for allowing us to be your trusted insurance professional. It isn't just a tag line; we really do take your protection and peace of mind seriously. We hope that next year we will be able to continue to earn your trust and business. If there is ever anything we can do for you, please let us know.

From me and my family, let me wish each and every one of you a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

Until next year,

Darren

The Vermost Family wishes everyone a very Merry Christmas.

Holiday Toy Safety Tips

The holidays are an exciting time of year for kids, and to help ensure they have a safe and happy holiday season, here are some safety tips from the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP).

- Select toys to suit the age, abilities, skills, and interest level of the intended child. Toys too advanced may pose safety hazards for younger children.
- Before buying a toy or allowing your child to play with a toy that he has received as a gift, read the instructions carefully.
- To prevent both burns and electrical shocks, do not give young children (under age 10) a toy that must be plugged into an electrical outlet. Instead, buy toys that are battery-operated.
- Young children can choke on small parts contained in toys or games. Government regulations specify that toys for children under age 3 cannot have parts smaller than 1 1/4 inches in diameter and 2 1/4 inches long.
- Children can have serious stomach and intestinal problems – including death – after swallowing button batteries or magnets. In addition to toys, button batteries are often found in musical greeting cards, remote controls, hearing aids, and other small electronics. Small, powerful magnets are present in many homes as part of building toy sets. Keep button batteries and magnets away from young children and call your health care provider immediately if your child swallows one.
- Children can choke or suffocate on uninflated or broken balloons; do not allow children under age 8 to play with them.
- Remove tags, strings, and ribbons from toys before giving them to young children.
- Watch for pull toys with strings that are more than 12 inches in length. They could be a strangulation hazard for babies.
- Parents should store toys in a designated location, such as on a shelf or in a toy chest.

DECEMBER: SEASONAL DEPRESSION AWARENESS MONTH
FEELING SAD? Seasonal Affective Disorder

SAD is more than the winter blues. It is a real type of depression that is most common in the fall and winter months.

What are the symptoms?

Low energy, depressed mood, hopelessness, irritability, anxiety, poor concentration, social withdrawal, changes in sleep and/or appetite, and loss of interest in activities you once enjoyed.

What can you do about it?

Structure your daily routine, make your environment brighter, get outside, exercise, socialize, take a trip, volunteer, begin a new holiday tradition, and don't succumb to holiday pressures.

We all have tough days, but this illness has a high success rate of 70-90% recovery when treatment is sought.

If your feelings of sadness during the holidays are accompanied by suicidal thoughts, call 911, immediately proceed to a hospital emergency room, or contact the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-273-TALK(8255).

Funny Insurance Claims

While moving furniture around for Christmas dinner, I tripped over the plug when carrying the TV set and dropped it in the fireplace.

I opened the oven, armed with a baster and a pair of oven gloves, but the turkey was heavier than I expected and it flew out of the oven onto the floor. We had a lovely meal, but the carpet was ruined.

I got up on Christmas morning to make the Christmas dinner, only to see that the freezer had defrosted on its own.

Every year, a surprising number of unlucky merrymakers succumb to food poisoning after mistaking inedible holiday decorations for chocolates.

Maybe Christmas doesn't come from a store.
Maybe Christmas, perhaps, means a little bit more.
